Responsible Care®: A Global Commitment

For nearly 20 years, ExxonMobil Chemical has participated in our industry's Responsible Care initiative. It is an integral part of the way we operate and exemplifies our steadfast commitment to safety, security, health and the environment. Our employees and contractors around the world not only perform top-quality work on a day-to-day basis, they also dedicate their time and talent to enrich the quality of their workplaces, surrounding communities and the environment.

To honor these extraordinary efforts, we developed the Responsible Care awards program. This year 289 nominations came from the Americas, Europe, Middle East and Asia-Pacific regions, and winners were selected in the following areas: community awareness, product stewardship, energy conservation, personnel health and safety, pollution prevention, process safety and emergency response.

Receiving an award for Responsible Care is one of the highest honors an individual, team or site can achieve at ExxonMobil Chemical. This year, 35 teams, 14 individuals and two sites have shown outstanding initiative. From new tools and processes that reduce waste to educational programs that benefit local communities, the winners have demonstrated the Company's commitment to Responsible Care.

Thanks to all of you who earned nominations, prepared entries, coordinated the program at site and regional levels, and contributed daily to our goal of excellence in safety, security, health and environmental performance. Your dedication has helped ExxonMobil Chemical become a leader in Responsible Care, which is a vital part of our effort to become the world's premier petrochemical company.

Congratulations to our 2006 Responsible Care award winners.

LSP Safety Forum Team

Shinagawa, Japan

A team at the Shinagawa site has focused on communication to improve safety. By facilitating Logistics Service Providers (LSP) Safety Forums, team members help ensure that the LSPs are aligned with ExxonMobil's safety goals and regulations.

The team of seven key personnel members from third-party LSPs and ExxonMobil logistics conducts the forums in a proactive, workshop-style approach. Members facilitate the exchange of information on ExxonMobil's policies, regulatory compliance data, incident issues and risk assessments to the service providers. This allows both groups to work together to identify potential problems and solutions.

Thanks to the Safety Forum team, the partnership between onsite logistics personnel and LSPs is one step closer to achieving flawless operations at the Shinagawa site.

Binda Kanayalkar: Stress Relief through Yoga

Mumbai, India

In the midst of meetings, projects, deadlines and day-to-day tasks, it can be hard for employees to find time to relax and practice healthy activities. Binda Kanayalkar set out to challenge that trend with the practice of yoga.

Over 10 weeks, Binda conducted 30 yoga sessions for employees. During each session, she explained and demonstrated yoga basics to ensure that participants used the right techniques. On several occasions, Binda dedicated extra time to help colleagues with certain postures and answer their questions.

The program attracted excellent participation from the Mumbai staff, which was a testament to Binda's commitment despite her own busy schedule. In addition to planning and conducting yoga sessions, she was transitioning from a sales planning role to an administrative role involving several new responsibilities.

During weekends, Binda also contributes to the community by conducting yoga sessions through local social service organizations.
